(Vanceburg Sun)

With all the turmoil in the country accompanied by acts of violence you never hear of the farmer mixed up in it and yet he has the best grounds for complaint. His products were the last to go up during the war and the first to hit the bottom after it was over. No commission has been mentioned to award him and his family a living wage; he just takes what's offered him, be it much or little, and takes satisfaction in cussing the other fellow's party. The farmer needs to organize; not to gouge the other fellow, but to keep from being gouged. Join the Tobacco Pool and the Farm Bureau and get started right and then stay right by keeping organized. Mistakes will be made but don't let go and lose all gained.

CORN

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation. (adv-T)

ST. ELMO'S FIRE

St. Elmo's fire is the popular name of an appearance sometimes seen, especially in Southern climes, during thunderstorms, of a brush or star of light at the tops of masts, spires of other pointed objects. It is sometimes accompanied by a hissing noise and is of the same nature as the light caused by electricity streaming off from points connected with an electrical machine. The phenomenon, as seen at sea, was woven by the Greeks into a myth of Castor and Pollux. Even yet such lights at the masthead are considered by sailors a sign that they have nothing to fear from the storm. The name comes from St. Elmo, St. Peter Gonzalez, 1190-1246, a Spanish Dominican, who is invoked by sailors on the Mediterranean during storms.

Edmund Harp, Paris grocer, filed a deed of assignment Friday in favor of his creditors, designating Jas. Clay Ward as assignee. No schedule of liabilities and assets was filed. His principal creditors are chiefly wholesale grocery houses.

EDITOR FISHER'S COMPLIMENTS
TO PARIS SECRETARY

Editor Warren Fisher, of the Carlisle Mercury bears an everlasting grudge against Paris streets, or at that portion in South Paris, which he justly terms a "succession of shell holes, craters and pits." In the last issue of his paper he fires the following broadside addressed to Secretary Harold Harris, of the Commercial Club:

"Mr. Harold Harris,
Secretary Commercial Club,
Paris, Ky.

"Dear Mr. Harris:

"Being a live wire, as all commercial club secretaries are, we are sure that you'll forgive us for giving you advice. But there is a sign, out on the pike, beyond the cemetery, urging the passing motorist to 'come again; stay longer.' And this same sign goes on to relate what a fine town is being left behind, and we don't deny it. But, Mr. Harris, you've doubtless studied business psychology, so don't you think it would be better to put the sign out further, beyond the city limits, where the motorist has enjoyed a few hundred yards of the county road? By that time he has gotten his spine back down out of his collar; has gathered up any of his family that may have spilled out during the ordeal of 'bumping the bumps,' and he just naturally feels better, thanking to Providence and everything like that, to have survived the 'crossing.' What means a broken spring or so, then, if there be no broken bones!

"Doubtless our ancestors, coming out of the Wilderness at Crab Orchard, after the perils of their journey, felt the same way—a feeling of thankfulness, a state of relaxation, after hardships undergone—a state of being psychologically right for you to drive home the force of your remarks about Paris with that sign-board. As it is, while mind, eye and muscles are co-ordinating like the deuce to make the crossing, one hasn't time to ponder the words painted there. When the motorist does catch a wiggling glimpse of that 'come again; stay longer,' his reaction to it is not good. If they are pious, you can hear 'em mutter and see their jaws tighten, but if they be of the army of the ungodly, they say it right out loud, just like that! And what they say about Paris (though it can't be printed in this great family journal) is not indicative of the state of mind you wish to arouse in the departing guest. So we respectfully suggest, Mr. Harris, that you have that sign moved, away down by the bridge on the Lexington pike, where it won't be so much like a red rag to an angry bovine."
